In a world being increasingly driven by digital and automation, the retail and logistics sectors are becoming blurred.

This is having a significant impact on their respective real estate sectors. This paper explores five of the key elements which will drive these changes.

This interactive PDF enables you to click on the relevant icon and read in more detail about how these trends will impact on both sectors. To understand what this means for the real estate component, click on the property icons in the outlook.